LIVE COVERAGE: Shasta Supervisors receive presentation on State Conservancy

Posted: April 18, 2016

Shasta County's Board of Supervisors on Tuesday will hear a presentation on a proposed law to create a state conservancy in the North State.

Senate Bill 1396, the Inner Coast Range Conservancy Act, introduced in February, would establish a state conservancy that would cover an area from Siskiyou County south to Napa County and would include portions of Solano, Tehama and Shasta County.

California currently has 10 conservancies, including the Sierra Nevada Conservancy, which includes portions of eastern Shasta County.

SB1396 proposes creating a conservancy to help the tourism and agriculture industries, while also protecting and improving water supply and air quality. The conservancy would cooperate with local agencies seeking grant funding or provide loans to public agencies, nonprofit or tribal organizations.
